

ASK FOR PROTECTION
FROM HAITIEN RIOTS

FOREIGNERS AT CAPE HAITIEN
MAKE APPEAL TO COM-MANDER BOSTWICK.

MARINES ARE LANDED

Force of Eighty Men Guard Lives and Property While Civil Strife Is Far From Settlement.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Rioting and pillaging broke out in Cape Haitien yesterday to such an extent that Commander Bostwick of the gunboat Nashville landed eighty men to protect lives and property of foreign residents.

Commander Bostwick took action at the request of foreign consuls. Instructions to his landing force were to protect Americans, all foreigners and their property.

Davila, Theodore, who had proclaimed himself provisional president before his defeat at Gonaves at the hands of the Aamor brothers, is trying to set up a government at Cape Haitien, where he retreated after the battle. He has appointed a cabinet, but appears to be losing control of his forces.

Port Au Prince Situation.
Latest reports from Captain Russell of the battleship Carolina at Port Au Prince, expressed apprehension for the safety of the city. However, he reports no organized effort to expel the foreign naval forces poling the city. His earlier reports indicated dissatisfaction by natives generally at the presence of the sailors and marines ashore.

A committee on safety headed by an American resident at Port Au Prince, representing foreign residents and principle business elements of the community, also requested the landing of naval forces and asked to have the rebel army, now advancing on Port Au Prince, excluded until some form of government can be organized.

Criticism of Wilson's Policy.
London, Feb. 6.—While "respect for his high character and fine ideas" moved the Globe to wish President Wilson well out of his trouble in connection with Mexico, Peru and Haiti, whose "blood-stained" administrations challenge the president's policy of non-recognition, it considers his position impracticable." The newspaper continues:

"The expedience of sanctioning and supporting civil war in a neighboring state is a declaration of war in a form which can hardly be reconciled with the comity of nations. The danger of the situation from the point of view of the United States is that there is no retreat with honor from the uncompromising and impracticable position President Wilson has taken up."

WELLESLEY FACILITY PLACE
STRICT BUT ON "WIGGLY"
TANGO FOR SENIOR PROM

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Wellesley, Mass., Feb. 6.—It will be a tangosale event tonight in the Wellesley girls will give tonight in the Mary Hemenway Gymnasium, scene of countless Terpsichorean events of other years. As a result of the facility ban on the wiggle tango, the girls are sad. Gloom about the classrooms today could be traced to the fact that senior "prom" generally is attended by Harvard students, and as Harvard men have gone in for the tango at all their dances, the girls feared the annual "prom" this year would be dubbed a frost.

SCHMIDT CONVICTED
BY JURY'S VERDICT

Pseudo Priest Laughs Bitterly As He Hears Words Condemning Him to Death in Electric Chair.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Feb. 6.—Hans Schmidt, a former priest, was found guilty on Thursday of murder in the first degree for killing Anna Ammiller, a young woman he had married through a self-performed ceremony while acting as a priest at St. Joseph's church.
The penalty for the crime is death in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison. He will be sentenced next Wednesday.

Hears Verdict Laughs.
Schmidt, whose defense was insan-tly, laughed bitterly when the verdict was pronounced. He had steadfastly declared himself guilty and at his arraignment before being held for the supreme court pleaded that he be punished by death. Later he protested against the insanity defense advanced by his counsel, and on Thursday night said he would not assist them in any way if they prepared an appeal.

Anna Ammiller's body was cut up with a knife in Schmidt's flat on Sept.
2 and the pieces, in several bundles, were tossed into the Hudson river where most of them were found before suspicion was directed against Schmidt. The head was never recovered.

Made "Sacrifice" of Girl.
Schmidt, in his confession to the police, said he was commanded to make a "sacrifice" of the Ammiller girl's life to his patron, St. Elizabeth.
Dr. Ernest A. Muret, a dentist Schmidt's friend and companion, who was arrested shortly after the former priest was accused of murder, was sentenced in October to seven years in the federal prison at Atlanta after his conviction for counterfeiting.

Schmidt declared at Muret's trial that it was he, and not Muret, who planned the counterfeiting operations.

EAST INDIANS MAKE
EXCLUSION PROTEST

Argument Advanced That Those Now

mitted to United States.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Manila, P. I., Feb. 6.—British East Indians to the number of three hundred, at a meeting here today, protested against the action of today's authorities in refusing them certificates enabling them to proceed to the United States. The speakers declared that they did not claim free entry to America or British India, but argued that those in the Philippines were entitled to admission to the United States. One of the orators said that the loyal subjects of King George had been consulted by the immigration authorities, both here and in the United States.

SCHOOL TEACHER'S WIDOW
GETS SUBSTANTIAL AWARD

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Feb. 6.—Amalia Torney, widow of Julius Torney, will be paid $1,840.34 by the city of Milwaukee under an award of the industrial commission, announced today.

Last year, Torney, who was principal of the fifth street school in Milwaukee, assisted at the preliminary field meet, where scholars were making tests to determine the eligibility of contestants to enter the field meet on the following day.

"The preliminary test for entrance to one of these contests," says the commission's memorandum, "required that the boy be able to pass or throw a basketball a distance of 75 feet in making a trial test, the ball was irregularly passed by one of these boys and accidentally struck Torney on the side of the head. While the force of the ball as passed was not great and would not likely have caused a serious injury to a man not suffering from arterial sclerosis in an advanced degree, yet the shock of the blow was sufficient in a case such as Torney's to rupture one of the blood vessels in his head."

Torney did not recover. He died December 27 last. He was paid a part of his wages while ill, which reduces the compensation.

DOUBLE LOVE ENDS
IN TRAGIC MANNER

Pennsylvania Man Shoots Sixteen Year Old Girl and Himself Because of Love Tragedy.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Greensburg, Pa., Feb. 6.—Love for two sixteen year old girls, neither of whom knew the other's existence, prompted John McFadden to kill Erma Lutz, and himself, as they sat in an automobile near Ligonier, Pa., early today.

McFadden, who had taken the girl for a ride late last night, telephoned his employer here that he would never see him again and men in high-powered machines were seen hurrying off to the mountains to find him. They came upon the auto by the roadside its engine still running, and McFadden and the girl dead.

In McFadden's pocket was a note saying that Erma Lutz was at Lambert, Pa., would tell the cause of the tragedy. To Coroner H. A. McMunray the girl said McFadden had written her a letter yesterday telling her he was going to kill "the other girl" and himself.

ICE JAM PREVENTS
RESCUE OF BODIES

Three Chicago Men Drowned in Lake Michigan Last Night Following Day's Revelry at Crib.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, Feb. 6.—Search for the bodies of the three men drowned along the ice floes of Lake Michigan a few hundred yards from the fashionable North Shore residence district last night, was abandoned today when it was seen that the packed ice was too heavy for tugs to break through. A few fragments of their shattered skiff are in plain sight from shore or from the windows of the residence and apartment houses, where hundreds of people last night listened to "the men's frantic cries for help."

The victims, William Cannell, keeper of the half mile intake crib, "Lefty" Williams, his assistant, and Stephen Varley, lost their lives as a sequel to a day of merrymaking with two women friends on the crib, it was learned today, when the two women, who were taken from the crib late last night by a fire tug after a five hours' battle with the ice, consented to give their real names and tell their story.

They are Mrs. Mae Smith, 31 years old, and Miss Margaret Wade. Mrs.
Smith said she was Cannell's cousin.
They said they had been enjoying themselves all day on the crib and that the women had made several trips ashore for provisions.

It was on the last trip just at nightfall that their boat overturned and was crushed by the ice. The men clung to the cakes and waited for help for nearly two hours. Growls on the shore shouted encouragement. Automobiles were brought, a line throwing gun was hauled from the life saving station, and appeals were sent to the city department for tugs.

WOMAN POLITICIAN IN FAVOR OF MACHINE PLAN FOR PARTY ORGANIZATION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Denver, Feb. 6.—"I am a machine politician. By machine I mean not a corrupt body but an organization pure in principle and certain in purpose."

So spoke today Mrs. Gertrude M.
Lee, the first woman in the United States to become chairman of a state central committee of one of the principal political parties. Mrs. Lee, who was vice chairman of the Colorado Democratic central committee, took over the chief executive office of her party in this state when Chairman George M. Bradley resigned. Mrs.
Lee is preparing a strenuous program for herself during her term of office.

"A machine—in other words a forefend and harmonious organization is the only factor which can assure the success of a party," she said today. "I believe in the party above the man. The candidate should be pledged to certain principles and after that the individual equation should be eliminated."

One of the greatest of my aims will be to bring the majority of the women of Colorado under the Democratic standard. I am a Democrat for principle's sake—not for political reasons. The progressive party claim to be true representatives of women's rights but I hope to make the Democratic party the leading exponent of the equality of women and men in politics."

Mrs. Lee has been prominent in Colorado politics for many years. During the last legislature she served as a member of the lower house. Her friends say that she has a genius for organization and predict the greatest success the Democracy has ever won in this state under her leadership.

ment. He said that Carey was a

Publicity and
Pure Foods

Publicity has done more to raise the standard of food products in the last few years than has any other cause.

Today the leading advertised brands on the market are standards of food quality. Their names are household words standing for purity.

The use of these advertised brands is growing because they have made good.

It does not pay to advertise a poor food product—and the manufacturers and dealers know it.

It does bring immediate and continuous returns to call public attention to some good brand through the advertising columns of a carefully read newspaper like The Gazette.

Notice the food products that are advertised here from time to time and you will see that they are the brands whose names are known the country over as standing for distinct quality and character.

It is a safe and profitable rule for you to give your patronage to the dealers who feature these advertised products.

WILSON BACKS MOVE
TO SECURE REPEAL
OF TOLL EXEMPTION

Question of Withdrawing Privilege Extended to Coastwise Ships is Now Before Congress.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Feb. 6.—Repeal of the toll exemption provision of the Panama canal law was before congress today as an administration measure backed by President Wilson.

Although repeal of the section which would give free passage to American coastwise ships through the great waterway, involves a practical repudiation of one of the planks of the democratic platform adopted by the Baltimore convention, which nominated President Wilson, administration leaders were sure of prompt action in the house and began lining up their forces in the senate where the hardest fight will come. Some democrats there are avowedly in opposition to the president's wish and have announced their intention of fighting his proposal.

A message to congress probably delivered in person by the president is expected as soon as congress develops the administration's course of action. Repeal of the free passage section will dispose of Great Britain's protest that it is in violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

Democratic senate leaders inclined to the view that initiative action would be awaited from the house, the extent of the president's opposition is expected to be disclosed in the debate on the renewal of the general arbitration treaty with Great Britain.
Senators who opposed repeal of the toll clause, argued today that the president's course might be considered wise from an international standpoint, even though the senate should check its purpose.

Representative Adamson has his bill prepared to repeal the toll exemption clause and is ready to introduce it when he hears directly from the president.

FAIR APPOINTMENTS
LEAVE OUT FARMERS

Breeders Criticize McGovern for Failure to Name Member of San Francisco Fair Committee.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Feb. 6.—Failure of the governor to appoint at least one farmer of livestock breeder of the Wisconsin livestock exposition commission to a position on the board of regents of the Wisconsin Livestock Breeders' association yesterday afternoon, George McKerron of Pewaukee, retiring director of farm institutes, A. J.
Ploemman of Elderon, and others voiced adverse opinions upon this policy. As a result of the situation existing, it was feared by speakers that the badger livestock interests the most important of the state's agricultural resources, may go unrepresented at the San Francisco fair.

In resolutions adopted, the association declared that the exposition commission be urged to provide for an adequate representation at the 1915 show.

Another resolution adopted favors the representation of the livestock interests on the board of regents of the university, with which the industry has a continual close relation.

The resolutions call upon the Wisconsin delegation in congress to advocate in placing seeds on the parcel post schedules.

WOMEN GRAND JURY
LIKES INVESTIGATION WORK

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Redwood City, Cal., Feb. 6.—California's first women Grand Jurors, the San Mateo county, like their work so well that they are going to keep it up, even if they must do so in an unofficial capacity. As a result of their action, plans of a county committee for the organization of a county

REAL WINTER STORM
ADVANCES EASTWARD

Blizzard and Severe Cold Now Cover-

In This Direction.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Feb. 6.—The severest weather of the year is now prevailing in the upper Missouri valley and the plains states as far south as Oklahoma and the Panhandle of Texas," the weather bureau in a special bulletin announced today. "Temperatures at Havre, Montana, this morning were 42 degrees below zero and zero temperatures or lower prevailed as far south as the Kansas-Oklaoma border. The unusually low readings have been attended by snow, high winds and gales."

"East of the Mississippi there have been numerous thunder showers in the southern states since snow in the northern regions. Thus far the snow has been comparatively light, but indications point to heavy snow in the lake regions and northern New England."

"The cold wave will overspread the east gulf states, the middle Mississippi valley and the lower Ohio valley in the next 24 hours and will bring the Atlantic coast states from Florida to Maine by Sunday morning."

WISCONSIN ADAPTED
TO SHEEP RAISING

Chicago Editor Tells Farmers They Should Include More Sheep in Livestock Holdings.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Feb. 6.—"Many more wisconsin farmers would be found in Wisconsin if they would include sheep as a part of their livestock holdings," said W. J. Clarke, editor of the Shepherd's Journal, Chicago, at the closing meeting of the Wisconsin farm culture, he spoke on "Some Good Reasons for Raising More Sheep in Wisconsin." He declared there are few sections in the entire world where sheep raising can be raised than in Wisconsin, and there are few farms that are not adapted to it.

Mr. Clarke said that many of the out-crover and burnt-over lands of northwestern Wisconsin would with proper management make as good sheep farms as other lands do. He scored efforts of land agents who "mislead the hard-working men of small means in the idea that all the land is taken up by large farms, and that a few dollars worth of sheep on it, and like the shepherds of certain sections of continental Europe, play on the land and grow rich while leading this romantic and poetical kind of life attending their flocks."

If farmers would give their boys a few sheep for company, the boys, he said, would soon be on the road to an honorable and successful career.

L. H. Bolstad, speaking in the special dairy course, said that cleanliness in and about the sheep is the most important factor in the production of the buttermilk have a direct effect upon the quality of the raw material received. This in turn affects the quality of the finished product. The new wool is is dollars and cents to the farmer.

G. Hastings of the college of agriculture, writing in Hoard's Dairyman today, takes issue with M. H.
Gardner of Delavan who has been against the application of the tuberculin test to sheep. He said that tuberculin is virtually a poison.

"Tuberculin is certainly not a poison," said Dr. Hastings, and its injection beneath the skin has no effect that can be measured. Many of the finest herds, free from tuberculosis, in this country are tested annually. Would the owners persist in this practice if the tuberculin test were as harmful as the tuberculin test is claimed to be?

Mr. Cary said in part: "Society is gradually coming to realize that teachers should be persons of splendid personality, strong, original, well trained

GINK AND DINK - THERE ARE OTHER THINGS THAN BONES THAT BREAK.

Sport Snapshots

Many a fight fan has remarked with some little regret that if Steve Ketchel had lived to the present day he would have thrown a whole lot of consternation into the present school of heavyweight fighters. Ketchel was a wonder when he lived, but had he survived to combat with the fighters we have now he would have been even a greater name. He died at a time when boxing was just beginning to boom and he would undoubtedly have lived on the game a great deal had he remained with us till now. Those who knew Ketchel like to tell about his great physical power and aggressiveness and particularly his deadly antagonistic nature. He was a most likeable chap personally, with a pleasant disposition and a kind heart, but apparently a most primitive cave man in many of his instincts. He was above all a "wild cat" westerner in every sense of the word. And frequently he would take sudden dislikes to persons for little reason at all and preferred to settle his arguments with a gun. His manager relates a particularly exciting adventure occurring with Ketchel in tow in Wheeling, W. Va. All the waiters at the hotel where they were stopping were colored and it being shortly after a defeat at the hands of Jack Johnson, Ketchel felt no very warm regard for the whole race. He thought he had an unusually good chance to even up a little with the Ethiopian persuasion. Wheeling was a quiet out-of-the-way place, so he pulled from his hip a long, mean-looking six-shooter and begged his manager to let him take a crack at four of the meanest looking of the darkies. It was only after his manager had assured him that they would return that night and plant two of the bunch that Ketchel could be made to leave. And with Steve once away from the place his keeper was greatly relieved, because he knew that the "Michigan Assassin" would have delighted in shooting up the whole bunch.

One day last season "Ping" Bodie, the White Sox able outfielder, was fined a pretty penny for merely dusting the foam off a seidel of beer. The full details of which appeared in the papers of course, to the huge delight of the fans. The fans somehow always like to kid the life out of Bodie. The next day when Ping advanced to the bat a wag yelled out: "You're not a fence-buster, Ping. You're the lifting highballs off the bar." Whereupon Ping retorted: "I'll show you what sort of a highball I can lift," and with that he leaned on the next one and lifted it over the fence.

APPLY FOR CHARTER FROM BOXING BOARD FOR MATCHES HERE

Perfect Plans for Bower City Club, Which Will Hold Bouts at Myers Theatre, During the Season.

Final plans have been perfected for the organization of the Bower City Boxing club in this city, and one of the directors of the new organization spent the day in Milwaukee, applying to the Wisconsin boxing commission for the charter and license under the new boxing law. If this is granted, the club will stage their first bout within the next three weeks. The directors have declared that they have met with a ready response from the citizens of Janesville in obtaining backing for the organization of the proposed club and will be able to start the venture with plenty of substantial financial assistance. They have obtained the necessary lease of the Myers opera house, which the state law provides for the holding of a year's time, and all that is lacking is the boxing commission's consent which is expected to be granted today. The Bower City Boxing association will be required to give ten thousand dollars bonds, and the bouts are staged under the supervision of the state commission, a member of which has to be present at every match and a capable referee is furnished by the state board, which in turn is given five percent of the gate receipts. In this state, the boxing law is expected to be granted today. The Bower City Boxing association will be required to give ten thousand dollars bonds, and the bouts are staged under the supervision of the state commission, a member of which has to be present at every match and a capable referee is furnished by the state board, which in turn is given five percent of the gate receipts. In this state, the boxing law is expected to be granted today.

The directors of the new club declare that they are ready to stick to the finish and realizing that possibly only two clubs in the state have made boxing profitable under the strict laws, have gone about the organizing of the association with great care, aiming to make the club a success. With the leasing of the Myers opera house the club is provided with one of the best buildings for boxing purposes in the state, as there is ample seating room for nearly a thousand, and it is better equipped than any auditorium, with the possible exception of the Milwaukee coliseum. With the granting of the charter the club expects to stage their first bout by the last of this month, and promise that the card will surpass in excellence any that has been staged in southern Wisconsin. It is not the plans of the directors to put on the highest class of boxers with second and third rate men, aiming to draw crowds by the reputation of the fighters, but for these bouts invariably turn out to be a farce. Bouts between evenly matched men, while not demanding stuns that would not allow the staging of good preliminary bouts, afford the fans the best sport, and such the Bower City club aims to give.

The revival of the game in Janesville is heralded with great enjoyment by local sport fans, who declare that if the bouts are run right, they should meet with instant success, as this city is a natural center for cities in southern Wisconsin. With excellent training accommodations with Madison, cities on the Mineral Point division on the St. Paul railroad, Rockford, Belvidere and Elgin by interurban lines, there is no reason why good bouts should not pack the opera house.

MOOSE FIVE BEATEN AT ROCKFORD RINK

Aggregation of Racine and Janesville Players Defeat Moose by Six to Three Score.

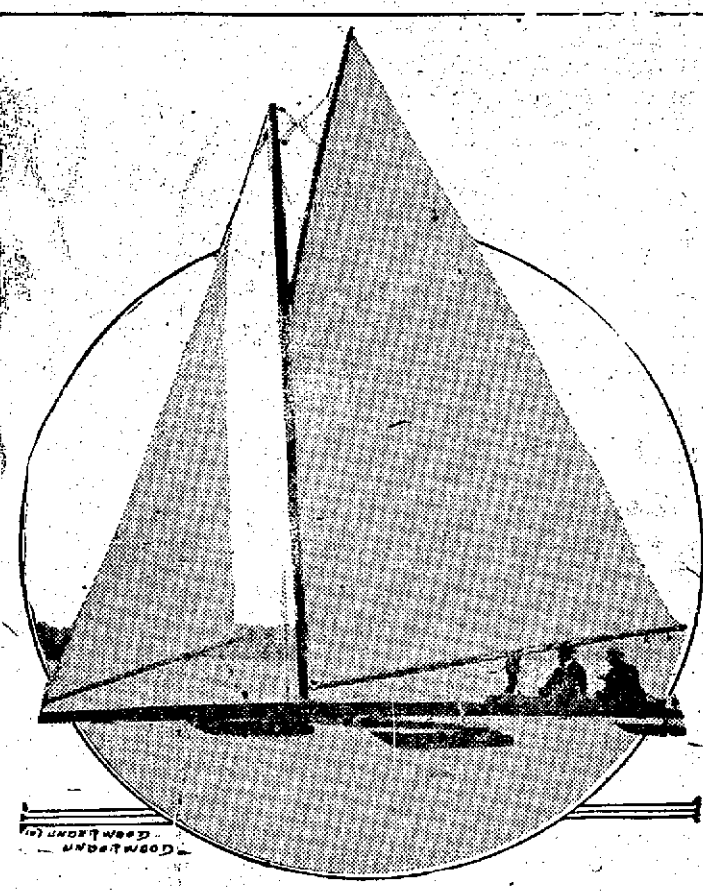

Before a crowd numbering over five hundred, the Janesville Moose roller polo team were defeated in an exciting match with a combination team composed of Racine and Janesville players at the Rockford coliseum last night. The Moose team was split to fill out the Racine five and lost the contest by a six to three score.

This contest was to introduce the game of the Rockford fans and the large crowd present was highly elated with the exhibition. In the first half the Moose obtained a lead of one goal which they held during this period. Close guarding by Conley kept the Racine forwards from caging the ball, but in the second third Racine clinched the combat with three goals, due to the fast work of Tiedie, Blunk and Schaffer. Worthington failed to make the brilliant stops as he did in the last Racine contest on the Janesville floor. Kilmer starred for the Moose, scoring all of the three Janesville goals. Fred Gaffey played in his usual form, but was unable to score due to the work of Chase, Racine goal tender.

Summary.

Racine—Tiedie, 1st r.; Blunk, 2nd r.; Schaffer, c.; Mooreman, h. b.; Chase, g.

First Year Five Hold Rivals in Interesting Match at Gymnasium Class Wednesday.

The freshmen girls' basketball team bid fair toward capturing the championship of the school, following their remarkable showing Wednesday evening in their battle against the sophomore girls, the final score resulting in a tie, 2 to 2.

At the end of the first half, the freshmen led, 1 to 0. Coming back in real form, the second year girls tied the count before time was called.

The line-ups for the teams follow:

VILLAGE IMPROVEMENT.

The "Nation," in discussing village improvement, which is along the same idea as the social centers of this state are working, says:

"The typical American village, from New York to New Mexico, is often wanting in civic spirit. That fact is writ large upon its face. It has one focus of interest in the school, and half a dozen in the churches and lodges. But it lacks the solidarity that would manifest itself in a true village pride; it is a population small enough to be really a unit, and permanent enough to strike its roots deep, yet it does not organize itself. This is not true of the towns of New England, which fifty years ago looked after themselves, their commons, shade trees, and white patings. But the dearth of most Western, Atlantic, and Southern villages testifies to the rule; they bear an alien aspect which, as William Allen White wrote, requires the touch of twilight to give it kindness. If the traveler glances about for a cause, he may think he finds it in the rather sordid atmosphere. The country town seems preoccupied with the day's work. But the true reason lies deeper.

"In a volume which Parris T. Farwell, of the Village Improvement committee of the Massachusetts Civic League, has just issued, are summarized recent attempts to deal with the general carelessness about village appearance. The society chosen as a model, it is true, is the Laurel Hill association, in Massachusetts, which has done remarkable work since 1853; and to New England the book gives most space. But there are also examples from the Dakotas, the South, and the Pacific northwest which tell of accomplishment out of all proportion to their short history. There are states wherein the villages are characterized as interested in one aspect of improvement only—roads and streets, sanitation, or libraries and parks. But it is implied that their leavening power is great, if only in spurring emulation. Over one aspect of the situation in the mid-west there is much seemingly short-sighted rejoicing. It is that outside stimulation has generally prompted local effort. A State Good Roads association brings about the macadamizing of the streets. A travelling library system, as in Iowa and Wisconsin, results in the founding of local libraries. State horticultural societies have done wonders in provoking planting of trees and shrubs in hundreds of small towns the railway adornment of station grounds has furnished an object lesson. State universities have been useful agents. But would not the impulse be healthier and longer-lived if it were self-born?

"The want of spontaneity springs naturally from the constitution of the ordinary American village. It fails to initiate within itself because conditions scarcely favor the production of leaders or the recognition of leaders. As indicated by a group of writers in the Atlantic in recent years, there is a want of imagination, of larger interests, manifested in a petty round of gossip and of jealousies, and in a painful sense of personal or family reserve. Given a group small enough, and Neighbor Jones will be loath to suggest a local improvement, because it savors of interference with Neighbor Smith's affairs. (The other conditions may be, at most, contributory causes. One that has to be considered is the rapidly changing personnel of many villages. They are not, as in Europe, inhabited from generation to generation by a family in the selfsame trade, but by ever-shifting names.

"It would be a serious matter if the American village's indifference to attractiveness rested on blunted perceptions. Then the proper method would be a revival of lectures of the Oscar Wilde type, who with sunflower bougainville could make the chaletauqua about echo a new gospel. Such men could point out that there is no reason why the fitness of Illinois should not be made beautiful, and deliver to Leadville or to Deseret's residents a new version of Ruskin on the mountain glory. But any town which has gone far enough in the concerted action of its citizens to provide itself with a chaletauqua is likely to be thinking also of its civic beauty. Possibly the amphitheatre itself rests in a specially designed park, part of a plan of local improvement which the distant future will consummate. With the process of natural selection between fit and unfit buildings, the prospect of our small towns is not so cheerless as the present ugly state of many would indicate. Much will depend upon the extension of those general or state agencies of which we have spoken. But at bottom, the change must follow upon the birth of a new social spirit in the village itself. Wherever, in the future, we have a beautified centre, we may be sure a set of social-minded people has been created."

TOO MUCH SYSTEM.

"In a large factory all the orders for supplies had to be signed by the sales manager. At the time the incident happened, however, this official was away from the factory on a vacation. The bookkeeper was in need of postage stamps for the sending of the company's mail and sent in a requisition for them. The stamps could not be purchased, however, until the signature of the sales manager had been placed on the order. (The order was, therefore, placed on his desk where it lay until his return from vacation. After it had been signed it followed the usual red-tape methods of the company. The result was that three months elapsed before the stamps reached the bookkeeper, during which time he had been buying stamps with his own money to send the company's mail."

The American Motorist thus discusses an overdose of system. The business of the country has long been sacrificing good sound business principles to a theory advanced by a lot of promoters, and a lot of red-tape methods have resulted. Efficiency is today the watchword, and system takes a back seat, when it interferes.

The six hour school day, established by Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, in the Chicago schools, is a reform that might well be adopted by all the schools in the country. The fact that health is of first importance, should not be overlooked. As is too often the case, the average high school girl is busy from eight o'clock in the morning until six at night, and comes near being a nervous wreck by vacation time.

Get The Saving Habit

The habit of saving has been the salvation of many a man.

It increases his self respect and makes him a more useful member of society. If a man has no one but himself to provide for he may be concerned simply in accumulating a sufficient sum to support him in his old age.

A savings book in this bank solves the problem.

On the Spur of the Moment

The Candidate.

I'm not a candidate for any public position, and I don't want to be.

No "poor" doth haunt me day and night and stare me in the face. No enemies are on my trail to bring me to disgrace.

They do not search rogues' galleries to try and find my name. And see if I have ever been confined in any "jug."

They do not circulate reports designed to drive me "bug."

They do not dig old speeches up I made long years ago. And try to prove that I said things that really were not so.

They do not search my family tree for things they want to know.

They do not publish letters that I wrote when but a cub. They do not call me ugly names or make me out a dub.

They do not try to get me in the Ananias club.

'Tis well to be a patriot and do things for the state. And be a hero that way, but I am here to relate, I'll be a private citizen and not a candidate.

In the Wake of the News.

A man dropped a $1,000 bill in New York and has gone back to look for it. He has more faith than Christopher Columbus, but not as much of a chance of success.

Mr. Bryan says: "All my life I have followed my conscience." Well, it has certainly led him a merry chase. Maybe some day he will catch up with it.

New Jersey high school girl has raised 39,000 pounds of tomatoes on one acre of ground. Probably the poor girl hasn't had time to learn the tango.

E. B. Jermyn.

E. B. Jermyn, the new mayor of Scranton, Pa., riveted a lid on the city during his first week in office. And in so doing he hurt the business interests of his own family. AGRICULTURE COURSE IN SCHOOLS POPULAR

JANESVILLE HIGH SCHOOL PIONEER IN STARTING AGRICULTURAL COURSE.

FILLS DESIRED NEEDS

Study Offers Great Opportunity for Farm Betterment and Aids "Back to the Farm" Movement.
(By Allan B. West.)

The Janesville high school was one of the pioneers in the teaching of agriculture in the high schools of the state. When the work in agriculture was begun three years ago last September the Janesville school was one of four high schools of the state to attempt such a course. Now there are many times that number.

It was begun because those in

DID CHILD WAKE UP CROSS OR FEVERISH?

Look Mother! If tongue is coated give "California Syrup of Figs" to clean the bowels.

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills: give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Counterfeits are being sold here. Don't be fooled!

charge were in hearty sympathy with the "back to the farm" movement, and because they believed that this course presented as great opportunities as any for intellectual development. They believed, also, that the importance of that occupation which forms the basis of all our industries and is the chief source of the country's wealth should be magnified, and the young men given an opportunity to become instructed in it, to the end that farming shall take its proper rank among the professions and our farms be improved. The aim is to educate the farmers' sons that they shall realize that the farm presents opportunities and rewards for the use of the keenest intellect and the soundest of judgment.

The work in this course is in direct opposition to the teachings of the principal of a nearby school of farmers' boys, who used to urge the farmers' boys to "escape the drudgery" of the farm by fitting themselves for "higher things." The aim in view has been the escaping of drudgery not by leaving the farm, but by applying one's knowledge to the laws of nature and working in harmony with them, believing that one may put so much of mind and heart into the great task of producing that the labor is not drudgery but a pleasure, because calling forth one's highest powers.

Rock county is one of the garden spots of the world. She is worthy a race of farmers equal to her possibilities.

When this county was first settled great crops of grain were produced upon her fertile prairies. The old settlers loved to tell of immense crops. But crops as a whole have decreased in size since those early days; the population has increased and the prices of food stuffs are rising.

It is possible with scientific management to raise as large crops as in the former days, for it has now and then been done, but it is not being done generally.

For the young men to see the possibilities is to stimulate them to take advantage of them, and to say what has been done can be done. To farm in the old unscientific way is to lead the way to disaster sure to come, as it has in the older countries of the world—Japan, China, India and Russia—where every now and then the attention of the world is called to suffering millions experiencing a famine.

The causes of these famines, as Dr. M. Martin in Institute Bulletin of Illinois points out are three: (1) illiteracy; (2) depleted soil condition; (3) dense population.

To avoid these calamities in our country we must learn how to conserve the soil and how to increase the crops. This involves the study of soils, the selection and care of seeds, the combating of the enemies of plants and animals, and animal husbandry. Upon these fundamentals lie the success of farming in Rock county.

Keeping these things in mind the course of study has been outlined. The work, however, is so new there have been no precedents to serve as guides and in common with other schools we have been finding our way. We probably have not reached the ideal course, but shall learn from experience and modify it from time to time as may seem best.

The work of first year is devoted largely to animal husbandry. The breeds of horses, cattle, sheep and swine are studied. Some practice is then given in the judging of livestock, horses, cattle, sheep and swine. The subject of breeding and heredity receives some attention. Feeds and feeding and feeding standards are considered and rations are calculated. Milk, skim-milk and cream is tested for butter fat by the use of the Babcock milk test.

We also instruct our students during this year in the types and breeds of poultry, give them a little practice in poultry judging, and teach them how to house, feed and care for poultry.

Our second year is devoted to the study of plant life. We aim to give the students the peculiarities of the essential classes of field crops, the handling of the soil, the selection of the seed, and the general crop management. We try to include in our course corn, wheat, oats, rye, barley, hay, clover, alfalfa, sugar beets, cotton, flax, hemp, tobacco, potatoes and stock feeds. We classify the farm crops, study their enemies, and their general treatment. Weeds and their eradication receive considerable attention.

During the late winter and spring considerable practical work is done in horticulture, pruning, grafting, spraying and propagation.

Our third year is divided between chemistry and soils. In chemistry we make a study of the ten essential elements of plants. The work is largely objective. We then teach the students the source of these elements for the plants. This leads naturally into the subject of soils, and the fertility of soils.

Under soils we give instruction in the following subjects: Conditions essential to plant growth, origin and classification of soils, nitrogen, phosphorus, potash, soil analysis, physical properties of soils, water supply, temperature and ventilation of soils, drainage, erosion, tillage humus, relation of crops to climate and soils, soils of the United States, management of important types of soils and dry farming. In connection with this work we have suitable elementary laboratory exercises.

During the last year of our course we give work along the line of agricultural physics and engineering. The following subjects are considered and practical work is done with each as far as is practicable—agricultural surveying, drainage, irrigation, road construction, farm machinery, as wagons, buggies, pumps, farm motors, tractors, farm structures, and farm sanitation. This work involves a considerable knowledge of the laws and principles of physics, as those of light, heat, electricity mechanics, etc.

In order to make the work in agriculture more efficient it is necessary to have greater co-operation between the school and the farmers and those patrons of the school who are not farmers but are interested in the "back to the farm" movement.

The pupils need opportunities for working out actual problems and for putting into operation the facts and processes about which they study. The farmers may assist in the following ways:

(1) Allow the boys to select and care for seed corn.
(2) Afford the boys opportunity to plant and care for a plot of corn, of potatoes or of alfalfa or some other crop.
(3) Afford opportunity for the testing of corn and other grains and grass seeds.

(4) Permit the boys to make records of cows milked, showing weight of milk produced daily and to test the milk. It is good practice for the class to add milk records.

Patrons living in the city who keep cows, horses or poultry, or have gardens or fruit trees, may afford the boys opportunity to care for the different animals or fowls or for the garden, and to prune and spray the fruit trees and make grape vines.

This co-operation is all the more important because the high school does not own any land for these purposes. The writer has a little place of five acres but it is too far away from the school to afford opportunity for the boys to work upon it. Occasionally some of them visit it and look at the growing alfalfa, the dairy cow, the stock beasts and the fruit trees, and other things by which the writer keeps in touch with agricultural life on a small scale; but what they need is opportunities to do actual farm tasks in ways in which they may learn by doing.

There are at present twenty-two boys taking the course, but during the three and a half years it has been given a number of other boys have taken a portion of the work. Not all of these are boys from the farm. Some of them are Janesville city boys. None of the boys give their entire time to the studies, as this course forms but one-fourth of their school work, the remainder being given to the studies for general culture as essential to the future farmer as to a man of any other calling.

The writer is aware that many farmers are still suspicious of the value of the teaching of agriculture in schools. They think it something that must be learned by experience, forgetting that methods of farming are changing in Rock county, as elsewhere, and that the farmer who is successful is not following the lines of farming of his father who preceded him, if indeed, there are in these times of change to be found two generations following the same calling in the same place. He forgets also that the operations of nature are slow and that a lifetime would not suffice to learn from experience that which one may learn in a short time from the recorded experience of others, whose lessons may be learned from books. "There might be some value in it," says one, "if it could be taught by some one who has had experience in these teachers who got all they know from books."

This might, indeed, be an ideal condition if a farmer who is also a teacher of agriculture; but it is to be his farming and devote himself to teaching agriculture; but it is to be feared that the schools would go begging for instructors if they waited for such a man. And teachers there have been since schools began who have taught chemistry, without being professional chemists, who have taught geography and have, never traveled, who have taught botany without being botanists, and have taught business bookkeeping and business methods and have never been engaged in business. Then why not agriculture?

To be sure the present incumbent was brought up on a farm but he lays no claim to efficiency on that score, for the trouble with too many farmers today is that they are following the methods of a generation past.

The preparations for this work involves not only a study of natural conditions on farms in the surrounding region, for which opportunities are limited when one's time is so largely occupied in the school room, but a very wide range of reading of periodicals, bulletins and books; and if he is able to awaken the minds of his pupils to the possibilities and the problems presented by farm administration and to introduce to them sources of information and inspiration, he will feel that the course of agriculture in the Janesville high school has not been given in vain.

AMENDMENT TO LAW FOR INCOME TAXES EXPLAINED BY TAYLOR

F. A. Taylor, Assessor of Incomes, Explains Changes Made in Original Bill For Income Tax.

The second article by F. A. Taylor, assessor of incomes in District No. 4, for valuable hints in making income tax returns as given below.

The income tax law originally enacted as chapter 658, laws of 1911, has been amended by chapters 27, 443, 487, 554 and 720, laws of 1913. While the changes are not great, yet it will be of interest to those who make income tax returns to know of them.

This article refers particularly to trustees, executors, administrators, agents and receivers. Section 1087m-10.5, has been changed and reads as follows: Every guardian, trustee, executor, administrator, agent or receiver, and every other person or corporation acting in a fiduciary capacity shall make and render to the assessor of incomes of the district in which such representative resides, a verified list or return of the amount of income received by him for such person, ward or beneficiary together with all income received by the ward, beneficiary, deceased or incompetent person, whom he represents or succeeds during the year covered by the return and shall be liable to assessment and taxation therefor, subject to the deductions and exemptions provided in this chapter; provided, that such deductions or exemptions have not been claimed by or for such person, ward or beneficiary in another capacity.

The return so made shall be signed by the person rendering it, and by the president or secretary thereof, if a corporation. Every person subject to an income tax in his representative capacity under this subdivision shall have all of the remedies and rights of reimbursement for any tax assessed or paid by him in such capacity prescribed by section 1044a of the statutes.

This section differs materially from the wording of the original section. It makes clear the duty of the persons acting in the representative capacities named, not only as to making the return but also as to their responsibility for payment of the tax, at the same time securing them against personal loss by giving them a lien upon the property in their possession until reimbursed. Nonresident beneficiaries are not entitled to the personal exemptions. If the trust is likely to terminate after making the return before the tax is payable, the representative should retain sufficient funds to pay the tax.

Particular attention should be given to the above section by all persons acting in the capacity of trustee, executor, administrator, agent or receiver, or as every person acting in such capacity will be required to answer and are held for the tax.

The tax commission has ruled that the total amount received by every guardian, trustee, executor, agent, etc., must be given, and the tax figured thereon. Beneficiaries in making their returns may deduct such funds on which a tax has been paid by the guardian, trustee, executor, agent, etc. The return is to be made to the assessor of incomes of the district in which the representative has his official place of business.

With respect to place of assessment and taxation income is of two classes: that which follows the situs of the property or place of business, and that which follows the residence of the taxpayer. The first class is affected by the existence of a guardian, trustee, etc., i. e., income derived from property located and business transacted within this state is taxable whether the residence of the representative or that of the ward, beneficiary, etc., be within or without the state. The second class, income which for the purpose of taxation follows the residence of the taxpayer, includes income from personal service, from land contracts, mortgages, bonds and securities. Such income will be assessed and taxed at the official residence of the representative, which is generally held to be the place in which the ward, beneficiary, etc., lived when the representative was appointed.

As a general rule the trustee of an estate under the jurisdiction of a Wisconsin court is taxable upon the income of the estate regardless of the residence of the beneficiary and even though the trustee personally lives without the state.

Neither should be made not only of the income received by the ward, beneficiary, but also of the income received by the ward, beneficiary, or incompetent person during the year covered by the return.

It is not believed to be the intention of the legislature to tax the income of residents of this state who are competent to make return on their own behalf.

Income received during 1913 is taxable to the representative whether such income has been distributed to the beneficiaries or not.

If an executor of trustee reports and is assessed for the entire income of an estate, the beneficiaries may each deduct the amount received therefrom in making their individual returns. Each beneficiary, however, should report the amount received as income and claim a corresponding deduction at the proper place on the return.

Exemptions: The allowance of the personal exemption is controlled by the status of the beneficiary. No exemption can be claimed on behalf of a beneficiary if the ward, beneficiary, is a non-resident of the state or if, being a resident, he is entitled to an exemption in another capacity.

Agents reporting income in the form of a salary or fee should state the location of the property and the facts called for in question 23, Form No. 1. In answer to question 37 such agents should also state separately the amount paid as commissions on rents, (b) the expenditure for janitor service, heat, water and light.

It is not believed that a guardian ad litem is required by section 1087m-10.5 to make return to income for his ward.

The principal return must be made on Form No. 1; the report on the reverse side of the sheet is entirely supplementary. A separate return of such income as is received by the ward, beneficiary, or incompetent person, etc., which the respondent presents.

All returns must be in the hands of the income assessor prior to March 1st, 1914.

A Doctor's First Question Is

"How Are Your Bowels? A Simple Remedy that Guarantees Good Bowel Action."

LIEUT. G. W. VAUGHAN.

Trace the origin of the commoner ills of life and almost invariably you will find that constipation was the cause. It is not to be expected that a mass of fermented food can remain in the system beyond its time without vitiating the blood and affecting the nerves and muscles. It congests the entire body.

The results are colds, fevers, piles, headaches and nervousness, with its accompanying indigestion and sleeplessness. There is only one thing to do, and that is to remove the trouble; and when nature seems unable to do it, outside aid is necessary. You will remedy that many thousands are now using for this very purpose, called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Many hundreds of letters are received by Dr. Caldwell telling of the good results obtained, and among the enthusiastic letters is one from Lieut. G. W. Vaughan, of 623 W. North St., Decatur, Ill. He is 42 and has had a bad liver and stomach since he came out of the army. He says he tried almost everything, but never succeeded in getting permanent relief until he took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. He is never without a bottle in the house, and he is never without good health.

It has untold advantages over pills, salts and the various coarse cathartics and purgatives, for while these do but temporary good, Syrup Pepsin cures permanently. The effect of its action is to train the stomach and bowel muscles to do their work naturally again, and in a short time all forms of constipation can be dispensed with. It can be bought without inconvenience at any nearby drug store for fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter size being regularly bought by those who already know its value. Results are guaranteed or money will be refunded.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 414 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

THE TANGO

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Slawsh."

THE TANGO was imported from Buenos Ayres just in time to neutralize the other great Argentine importation which threatened to reduce the coat of living—chilled beef.

The tango is said to be a dance, but it is more often a dispute. Every night, through all this eager country, irritated couples are standing while the music carries gaily on, each trying to tell the other the really proper way to tango.

This is very difficult to do, because in some towns there is no proper way to tango at all. In New York the accomplishment is regarded merely as a misdemeanor, while in Chicago it is a bore. College faculties have given up discussing the financial question this winter until they can discover whether to classify the tango as college spirit, disorderly conduct or athletics.

The tango should be approached with caution by the ignorant. In the first place, one should always allow the other person to pronounce it first. If you were to pronounce the "a" as in "dang," ten to one the other party would lift her eyebrows several stories and eradicate you by alluding to the "tawngo" in frosty terms.

As a matter of fact, "tango" is Argentine for "tangle." Those who have watched a flustered but earnest couple trying to unbraide their feet after a false start in this peerless dance will readily believe this.

The tango may be all right in Buenos Ayres where the climate is different, but in this country it is a great menace. It has already increased the incentive for crime by a fold. When a few good and honest, but slightly awkward young men have a handsome young city visitor exhibit seventeen different versions of the tango and using all the good looking girls in the hall during the process, law and order stand no show at all. Later in the evening these young men, who may never have killed any one before, will discover the handsome young tangoist in a dark spot on his way home and they will mar the neighborhood sadly by smearing him all over it.

Vocations for Young Christians

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D.D.
Dean of Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT—But unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ.—Ephesians IV:7.

I am to speak to you on the subject of "Christian Vocations for Young People," which is my reason for using this text.

"Us" is the important word to begin with, which does not mean everybody, but only true Christian believers in the sense of regenerated men and women. On such as these the Lord Jesus Christ bestows spiritual gifts according to His grace, as the rest of the verse says. These "gifts" are for the use and blessing of the whole church, and are described in general terms in the following verse as apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers.

Note this, that while we all believe in education and especially in an educated ministry, yet all the colleges, and seminaries and Bible institutes in the world can not make such apostle, prophet, evangelist, pastor or teacher. They have tried to make them and have turned out graduates that looked and acted like them, perhaps, but they were not the real thing, and the church has suffered by the imposition. A true apostle, prophet, evangelist, pastor or teacher is the gift of the Great Head of the Church in His body. He is a Spirit-taught and Spirit-endowed man, and when the church sees or hears such an one it recognizes his divine commission whether he has the imprimatur of a school or not.

What Ministers Are For. Now, specifically, what are these "gifts" bestowed upon the church for? The answer of the text verse is, "For the perfecting of the saints," which means all true believers, for every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ becomes a saint the moment he so believes. But when the saints are thus "perfected," enlightened, strengthened in the knowledge of the Lord, what are they to do? The answer is to engage in the "work of ministering for the edifying (building up) of the body of Christ." (Verse 12.)

Here comes in the question of Christian vocations for young people who may not have the gift of apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors or teachers. There is a work of ministering for them to do nevertheless, when they are "perfected" for it by those who have been truly set apart for that task.

What is the nature of this work? If the student output of the Moody Bible Institute may be taken as a criterion, there is a wide variety in it. We have been taking a census of 3,000 to 4,000 young men and women who have passed through our hands, and have found that some are pastors or assistant pastors, and some are wives of pastors, for the last named is a calling for which Christian young women need a distinct training. Some are evangelists or evangelistic singers, both men and women; some are home missionaries; some are teachers in Young Men's and Young Women's Christian associations; some are superintendents of missions and hospitals; some are matrons, deaconesses and nurses, while still others have simply gone into commercial or professional pursuits, and, in the case of women, are occupied in home duties.

Every "Joint" of Value. This brings us to the closing words of Paul on this topic, in verse 16, where, keeping up the figure of the church being the body of Christ, he says, "From whom the whole body fitly joined and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, maketh increase of the body." In other words, every single joint in this spiritual organism is of value to the whole, which means that not one of us Christians can be spared in the exercises of our vocation whatever or wherever it may be. The smallest visible joint in the human body may be that of the little finger. It seems of comparatively little worth, but let it get "out of joint" for a while, and what happens? The whole body soon becomes aware of it, and in time may be "put out of commission" because of it. So you and I may have a small opinion of ourselves in the organism of Christ's spiritual body, and from one point of view it is becoming that we should, nevertheless it is necessary that we do our part or else "all the members suffer." We may not be apostles, evangelists, prophets, pastors or teachers, but we are that which is represented by a "joint," and need to be always in union with the Head, and with the other members of the body if the whole shall be profited and increased. The vital question, however, is that suggested at the beginning, are you included in the word "US"? It is not enough to live in a Christian land, not enough to be a church member.

Of Little Value to the World. A face which cannot smile is like a bud which cannot blossom, which gries up on the stem.—Richter.

HAS CONFIDENCE IN THE REVOLUTIONISTS

FRANK LOPEZ ARRIVES IN CITY FRESH FROM MEXICAN WAR.

WAS IN VILLA'S ARMY

Took Part in Attack on Juarez—Served Several Months With Constitutionalists.

Fresh from a two months' service with the Mexican constitutional army under General Villa, Frank Lopez, of Oaxaca, California, arrived in Jansville Wednesday evening to visit at the home of Grant U. Fisher on South Main street. Stanley Fisher, a son of Mr. Fisher, being camped on the same ranch, the Miller & Lux, as Lopez before the latter joined the Mexican revolutionists.

Mr. Lopez believes the raising of the embargo on the importation of arms into Mexico will increase Villa's power seven fold. He says Villa has plenty of men but not enough guns and ammunition. Now it will have both. Aside from his experience in the Mexican army Mr. Lopez has the distinction of being one of the "bronco busters" and "rope tossers" in the southwestern country. Although a young man he has had an interesting and varied experience.

About a week ago Lopez came to Chicago with a trainload of cattle and decided to run up to Jansville. Lopez has many interesting experiences to relate, having been with the rebel army for about two and a half months under Villa, which name he says is pronounced as though it were spelled Vea.

"I wanted to go down there and see what was doing, and having spent my entire life in the saddle, I thought the chances pretty good for enlisting. I was brought right up before Villa himself. I told him I wanted to enlist, and the first question he asked me was, 'What is your nationality?' Not that nationality makes so much difference to them but they are afraid of spies getting into the ranks. I told him I was part Spanish and part French, and then started answering his questions in Spanish. After that I got a job at $2.50 per day and was paid every night.

The rebels get their revenue from the mines of Villa, which means ten per cent for support of his army. Every man is supposed to look after his own grub. The men are furnished with bread and cheese and kill their own meat. Everything they need is just taken regardless of who thinks he owns it. The first day I was in the army I saw thirty-six men executed. They were federal captives, and there was no place to keep them, so the easiest thing was to shoot them. I thought I was pretty brave before I went down there, but when I got into an engagement and heard bullets whistling on all sides of me, I found a nice big rock and camped behind it for some time. That is the way the rebels have to fight, or they wouldn't last a week. You see little puffs of dust spitting up from the rocks where the rebels strike, and you are glad to be behind the big one.

The soldiers have great respect for Villa, and stick to him in spite of the poor organization of his forces. If a man drops his gun and starts to run, one of his own men will take a shot at him. I was with the troops who took the city of Juarez, and rode into the city on top of the train. My job was to direct the aim of the machine guns, giving them the right altitude so they would be most effective. Men were shot on all sides of me, and even though they were not killed they would be kicked off the top of the train to make room for more sharpshooters.

We forced about 5,500 federal soldiers, including men and their families, to cross the river to Presidio, where they are being kept at Fort Bliss. The fort is surrounded by a twelve foot wire fence and is charged with electricity all the time so that none of the captives can get away. The Americans feed them and Villa sends them cattle, so they are pretty well cared for. "Human life is taken down there the same as that of a jackrabbit. When I served as a guard at night, my instructions were to challenge any one who passed, saying in Spanish, 'Quien sabe,' which means 'who goes there?' If they did not answer I would throw open the magazine of my gun, and this noise was usually enough to scare them into answering. If they did not answer, however, I had to plug them, because we could not take any chances. I was chosen for scout duty, one of six, out of fifteen hundred, and did not like the idea of stopping bullets for $2.50 per day, so handed in my resignation. A soldier from the outside can quit anytime, but the regulars are shot if they try to make a getaway."

Mr. Lopez stated that Villa would have things all his own way as soon as he procured enough ammunition and guns to supply his men. He does not want to be president. "I have heard him say as much," said Lopez. He is fighting for a principle. He does not want to allow his followers to be subject to the condition of servitude that has prevailed heretofore. The men in authority made them work for nothing, and sold their wives to Chinamen.

After looking over the town, Mr. Lopez states that he thinks he will stay here for some time and go to work, as he likes this part of the country better than the south. The ranch upon which he has been employed is that of the Miller-Lux combination, covering in all 75,000 acres, and extending through the states of California, Utah, Oregon, Nevada and Arizona. It is divided up into a great number of smaller ranches, all under one management, but under different superintendents. The owners got most of the land in the early days by shrewd trades with the Mexicans, who were in possession at the time. The father of Lopez is the superintendent of the cattle division of the Oaxaca ranch, where they raise annually 15,000 hogs, 50,000 sheep and break about 700 colts. About forty-five men are employed on this particular ranch, over which Lopez is in charge.

This is but one of thirty odd ranches which are owned by the Miller-Lux company. In all they have over 500,000 cattle, about 12,000 broken horses, 150,000 sheep and 60,000 hogs, and over 500 men employed on the different ranches.

This land comprises some of the richest holdings in the west, and at the present time much of it is selling as high as two hundred and twenty dollars per acre. One ranch runs down the coast of California from about one hundred and fifty miles south of San Francisco to Bakersfield. This is a great resort and on this the proprietors spend most of their summer months.

Common Custom.

When a native Mexican girl falls in love with a young man, she sings songs to him—and in due time they are married. It's very much the same way in the United States, if the young lady is a singer.

Bound to Have Some Kick.

"Don't you want to see the world a place of complete peace and harmony?" "No," replied Mr. Growcher. "Just as soon as you get the world peaceful and harmonious a lot of people will arise and kick because competition has been eliminated."
